

Improving the quality of life and care in your home

Live music activities for wellbeing and workforce development in care settings.

“We have seen many impacts on residents including increased self-confidence, new friendships, improved eating and drinking, laughter and improved speech.”

Shona Bradbury, Manager,
Appleby House Care UK

We bring interactive and varied live music concerts to your care home or group, transforming staff and residents' lives and relationships.

We offer concerts and activities that your residents and staff will LOVE. Thanks to our diverse range of musicians working all over the UK, these include everything from pop to classical, folk to culturally specific music.

Our work goes far beyond 'entertainment'. Because we're a charity, we're focused on purpose not profits. So we improve quality of care through music, and support staff to integrate music into the daily life of your care home. No music experience is needed!

“For residents who can become anxious and agitated as a result of dementia/mental health, this has reduced.

The biggest impact overall is a 50% reduction in the use of all sedative medications being administered and 100% reduction of all PRN medication!”

Adam Hesselden, Manager,
Woffington House Care Home

STEP FOUR: Discuss how we can bring our 8-12 week programme or staff training to your home.

As well as improving wellbeing, our 8-12 week interactive live music programmes can also help with business-critical challenges, by:

- Building staff skills and abilities, not just in music, but in personalised, empathic care, to spend less time responding to agitation and anxiety and more time on quality care and relationships.
- Improving staff wellbeing, reduce burnout, and help with retention and recruitment. Staff discover hidden abilities, joy, and confidence.
- Helping with occupancy, offering those added extras to enrich lives, that residents and families look for and that make you stand out from competitors.
- Supporting your care services to be safe, effective, caring, responsive and well-led, potentially contributing to improved CQC rating.
